The Chimaera of Arezzo is a bronze statue which was found in Arezzo, in Italy, in 1553. Of Etruscan origin, probably from 5th century BC.

EIPT 3473 Educational Psychology of Childhood and Adolescence
Dr. Teresa DeBacker

EIPT 3483 Cognition, Motivation, and Classroom Management
Dr. Barbara Greene

Students will take JRCoE professor-taught courses in English at The University of Oklahoma center in Arezzo, which is a small town located in Italy's Tuscany region. It is about 80 km (50 miles) south-east of Florence, set atop a steep hill rising above the Arno River.

There students will enjoy the gorgeous Mediterranean atmosphere, visit Rome and Florence, learn first-hand about Etruscan, Tuscan, and Italian history and culture, and make progress on your education degree program in a small, quiet, and secure Italian town.

In addition to studying theories of human learning and development and examining what motivates student learning and classroom management strategies, students will gain an international perspective as they compare and contrast their educational experiences in Italy and Oklahoma.

Program Requirements

- No language experience required (courses are taught in English)
- Undergraduates and graduate students in JRCoE, students admitted to the Teacher Preparation program (College of Arts & Sciences TE+ and Fine Arts), or others with approval.
- Must be in good academic standing

Contact:
Wendy M. Walker
Academic Adviser & Global Education Programs
wmwalker@ou.edu

The University of Oklahoma is an Equal Opportunity Institution. www.ou.edu/eoo