Using the Communication Matrix
to Teach Communication and Literacy Skills

The Communication Matrix is a communication skills assessment instrument for individuals functioning at the earliest stages of communication who may use any form of communication, including pre-symbolic communication and augmentative or alternative forms. The instrument is appropriate for young children to high school age. The Developmental Learning Maps (DLM) is based on the Communication Matrix. This workshop will provide participants hands on opportunities to use the Communication Matrix tool as well as create appropriate communication and literacy activities for children with multiple disabilities and/or deaf-blindness.
