After Laura Poitras received encrypted emails from someone with information on the government’s massive covert-surveillance programs, she and reporter Glenn Greenwald flew to Hong Kong to meet the sender, who turned out to be Edward Snowden.

Security Challenges in a Turbulent World
an International Security Studies Symposium
February 25-26, 2015

Wednesday, February 25
Film screening of Citizenfour
6:00 pm
Hester Hall, Room 148

Thursday, February 26
Mary Eddy and Fred Jones Auditorium, Fred Jones Jr. Museum of Art

12:00 pm - 1:15 pm
“Pattern Recognition: Digital Surveillance in the Post-Privacy Era”
Joe Masco
Professor of Anthropology
University of Chicago

Lunch will be served in the Sandy Bell Gallery
RSVP to rkmartin@ou.edu with subject line: symposium lunch

1:30 pm - 2:45 pm
“Toilet Insecurity: Urban Women’s Everyday Experiences of Inadequate Sanitation in India”
Kathleen O’Reilly
Associate Professor
Department of Geography
Texas A&M University

Thursday, February 26
National Weather Center
Reception: 5:45 pm
Dinner & Keynote: 6:30 pm
RSVP required. Email rkmartin@ou.edu

3:00 pm - 4:15 pm
“Identity and the Construction of National Security”
Jarrod Hayes
Assistant Professor of International Relations
Sam Nunn School of International Affairs
Georgia Tech University

“Security Challenges in a Turbulent World: Fewer Enemies, More Dangers, Greater Anxiety”
Thomas Fingar
Oksenberg-Rohlen Distinguished Fellow in the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies at Stanford University

For accommodations on the basis of disability contact rkmartin@ou.edu.