PARTICIPATION MAKES ME A MODERN GIRL
The Politics of Presence at the Ballot Box and in the Classroom in Post-Revolutionary Iran

with

Dr. Shervin Malekzadeh
University of Pennsylvania

Wednesday, October 12, 2016
3 p.m.
Farzaneh (formerly Hester) Hall, Room 145

Shervin Malekzadeh is a Visiting Scholar at the University of Pennsylvania’s Middle East Center. Prior to the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Malekzadeh was a Visiting Assistant Professor of Political Science at Swarthmore College. His research focuses on the politics of schooling, culture, and identity in postrevolutionary Iran. A regular visitor to Iran and an accidental participant in the 2009 Green Movement, his articles have appeared in The New York Times, The Atlantic, The Washington Post, and The Guardian. Dr. Malekzadeh served as an elementary school teacher for several years in East Palo Alto, California, and Washington, DC, as well as an instructor and researcher in Chile and Northeast Brazil.

An Iranian woman flashes the victory sign as she walks next to the electoral posters for a parliamentary election EPA.