Sooner Math Program Facts

We are pleased to announce our partnership with Redlands Community College to provide our new and innovative Sooner Math Program. We have worked together to design a program to provide students with the best possible opportunity for success.

- Students who are invited to participate in the Sooner Math Program must complete the developmental math course at OU. In order for you to build the strongest foundation for all of the courses you will take at OU, we feel it is critical that you start by being a part of the Sooner Math Program. For this reason, we have partnered with Redlands Community College, a recognized leader in the design and delivery of developmental math courses.

- As a member of the Sooner Math Program, you will enroll and pay tuition and fees for your math class through OU. You will apply and be awarded financial aid through OU as well. Your math course will be offered on the OU campus by Redlands Community College, our partner institution for the Sooner Math Program.

- Participants in the program will have special access to student services to assist them throughout their OU experience. This includes iTutor, an innovative 24/7 web-based tutoring resource.

- Redlands Community College does not require any additional application or fees for Sooner Math Program students.

- Students participating in the Sooner Math Program will be eligible for the benefits provided to all OU students, including student housing, tickets to athletic events, use of Houston Huffman Fitness Center and Goddard Health Center.
