Looking for another course to take next semester?

Are you interested in taking a fun class with a small community of students and a passionate and student-centered instructor? Enroll in one of the various UC Seminar courses and dive deeper into a topic of interest or submerge yourself into something new!

Each UC Seminar is focused on a different topic and taught by an expert in that area and passionate about student learning. Each seminar course is capped at no more than 21 students, which helps create a close community of learners. UCOL 1022 is letter-graded and counts as two hours of elective credit.

See the next page for options!
UCOL 1002-001: Becoming Globally Engaged
T/R 10:30-11:20 am in Wagner Hall, Room 135  Instructor: Bushra Asif
This course aims to critically examine the meaning, importance, and application of “global engagement.” Throughout the course, students will explore the many ways they can become globally engaged during and after their time at OU. The class will help students become active global citizens by increasing their understanding of a variety of global issues, critically analyzing the case for studying abroad, reflecting upon the role of cultural assumptions, power and privilege during intercultural exchange and the meaning of service and global civic participation. This course is open to Global Engagement fellows. Students taking this course are encouraged to also enroll in IAS 2003: The Global Community.

UCOL 1002: 9 Things About Money & College
Section 002: T/R 11:30 am – 12:20 pm in Wagner Hall, Room 140  Instructor: Michael Hinderman
Section 006: M/W 12:30-1:20 pm in Carson Engineering Center, Room 121  Instructor: Jessica Schwager
This course is designed to give students a basic knowledge of personal finance and money management, covering topics such as saving, credit cards, investing, credit scores, buying a home, and other monetary issues that directly affect college students and graduates. Students will take an active role in the course by applying lessons and assignments to their own personal situations. Students will learn how to build and maintain a personal financial plan.

The goal of the course is to develop financially literate students who will be fiscally secure today and in the future.

UCOL 1002-003: Sex in the 21st Century
T/R 12:30 – 1:20 pm in Wagner Hall, Room 145  Instructor: Lawrence (Joe) Marshall
The primary goal is to explore various sexual issues as they are developing today. This may include; Abortion, STDs, Sexual Dysfunctions, Rape, Sex Education, Contraception, Love, and Relationships. The precise issues will be determined by what will be occurring in the media at the time of the class. One objective of this course is to promote a forum where different views can be discussed in an open and respectful manner. You are not told what to think, but rather to think and to develop your individual meaning of sex. Other objectives include enhancing the students’ ability to think critically, to know and use the University’s resources, to work independently on some proacts, together in teams on others, ad to be aware of the current events involving sex.

UCOL 1002-004: Abnormal Psychology in Film
M/W 2:30-3:20 pm in Wagner Hall, Room 145  Instructor: Mary McKinley
From Psycho to Split, the fascinating aspects of abnormal psychology have been a popular topic of exciting, funny, and frightening movies for decades. How are these movies beneficial for learning about abnormal psychology? How might they be harmful? Learn about abnormal psychology while exploring and analyzing how Hollywood movies have depicted the field and those who are affected by these disorders. Assignments will include viewing and critically analyzing films with feature characters affected by abnormal psychological disorders.

UCOL 1002-005: Music, Identity, and Messages
M/W 10:30 – 11:20 am in Wagner Hall, Room 250  Instructor: Jennifer Slater
Music is a powerful expression that has had an incredible impact on the world over the years. In this course, we’ll explore how music plays a role in the construct of our identities and the messages that shape our communities.
