Program Student Learning Outcomes

College: Education
Program: Education Studies, M.ED

- Students are prepared as educators to understand and apply disciplinary knowledge from the humanities and social sciences to interpreting the meanings of education and schooling in diverse cultural contexts.

- Students are prepared as educators to understand and apply normative perspectives on education and schooling.

- Students are prepared as educators to understand and apply critical perspectives on education and schooling.

- Students are prepared as educators to understand how moral principles related to democratic institutions can inform and direct schooling and other educational practice, leadership, and governance.

- Students are prepared as educators to understand the full significance of diversity in a democratic society and how that bears on instruction, school leadership, and governance.

- Students are prepared as educators to understand how philosophical and moral commitments affect the process of evaluation at all levels of schooling and other educational practice, leadership, and governance.

- Students are prepared as educators to critically analyze current educational policies and practices at national, state, and local levels and their impacts on teaching, learning, and the assessment of P-16 students.