Program Student Learning Outcomes

College:  Education
Program:  Special Education, Master of Education

- Upon completion of the degree program, students should be able to analyze, synthesize, and report special education literature.

- Upon completion of the degree program, students should be able to identify the need for an instructional, research, or service need/outcome in the special education field; and develop ideas and/or materials to support meeting that outcome/need.

- Upon completion of the degree program, students should be able to describe and record behavior, and implement an applied behavioral intervention.

- Upon completion of the degree program, students should be able assess the academic and behavioral performance of students with mild/moderate disabilities.