About the Center

The Carl Albert Congressional Research and Studies Center is a nonpartisan institution devoted to teaching and research related to the United States Congress and to strengthening representative democracy through engaged and informed citizens.

Established in 1979, the Center is a living tribute to the ideals, leadership, and accomplishments of the Honorable Carl Albert, native Oklahoman, University of Oklahoma alumnus, Rhodes Scholar, and 46th Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives.

The Center houses one of the largest congressional archives in the country, with the papers of 60 former members of congress and 20 other collections with close ties to congressional politics, such former legislative and political aides, journalists, scholars, and organizations.

Distinguished visitors to the Center:
Former Ambassador James R. Jones
Former Congressman Dick Armey
Former Congressman Mickey Edwards
Morris Fiorina, Stanford University
Jennifer Hochschild, Harvard University
Jack Rakove, Stanford University
Steven S. Smith, Washington University in St. Louis
Frances Lee, University of Maryland
Keith Whittington, Princeton University

The University of Oklahoma is an equal opportunity institution.
About the Program

The Carl Albert Graduate Fellowship is a highly-competitive and prestigious program at the Carl Albert Congressional Research and Studies Center at the University of Oklahoma.

Carl Albert Fellows work closely with Center faculty, in cooperation with the Department of Political Science, to pursue a rigorous and individualized program of study leading to a PhD. Fellows focus their program of study on fundamental issues in representative government in America including the study of institutions, processes and public policy. Fellows pursue two additional fields of study selected from among comparative politics, international relations, political theory, public administration, public policy or research methods.

The robust fellowship package provides up to five years of financial support as a teaching or research assistant (including summers), full tuition and fees, funded research and conference travel, course work at the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) and dissertation research funds. The Center also assists Fellows in finding the best possible placement to meet the Fellows’ career goals.
