James Garbarino, PhD is the current holder of the Chair in Humanistic Psychology at Loyola University Chicago and a Fellow of the American Psychological Association. He was founding Director of the Center for the Human Rights of Children at Loyola University Chicago. Dr. Garbarino has published extensively throughout his career. His most recent book is “Miller’s Children: Why Giving Teenage Killers a Second Chance Matters for All of Us” (2018). His publications focus mainly on children and adolescents facing a variety of challenges in today’s society. Dr. Garbarino has been honored with countless awards in recognition of his efforts on behalf of abused and neglected children, his contributions to child protection, and numerous humanitarian awards throughout his career. His dedication to the well-being of children and families in America has been recognized by many organizations and institutions in the U.S. Dr. Garbarino’s commitment is reflected in the numerous awards and honors he has received.

Richard D. Krugman, MD, is a Distinguished University Professor at the Kempe Center for the Prevention and Treatment of Child Abuse and Neglect at the University of Colorado where he has been for this entire academic career. Dr. Krugman is a graduate of Princeton University and earned his medical degree at New York University School of Medicine. In 1981, he was named as Director of the C. Henry Kempe National Center for the Prevention and Treatment of Child Abuse and Neglect, and gained international prominence in the field of child abuse earning many honors in the field of child abuse and neglect. He was appointed to the U.S. Advisory Board of Child Abuse and neglect in 1989, serving as Chair from 1989-1991. He was appointed Acting Dean of the University of Colorado School of Medicine in July, 1990, became Dean in March, 1992 and was appointed Vice-Chancellor for Health Affairs in July, 2007, positions he held through March, 2015. He is a past Chair of both the Association of American Medical Colleges (AAMC) and the Council of Deans of the AAMC (2001-2002). Dr. Krugman was elected as a member of the Institute of Medicine (IOM) in 2005. Dr. Krugman has authored over 100 original papers, chapters, editorials and four books, is Co-editing a book series on Child Maltreatment with Jill Korbin, and served 15 years on the board of the International Center of Excellence & a Recognized Leader in the Field of Child Maltreatment.

Marla R. Brassard, PhD, is Professor in the School Psychology Program at Teachers College, Columbia University. For 37 years her research has focused on psychological maltreatment (PM) of children by parents, teachers, and peers. She has co-authored four books, two on PM, many articles/chapters, co-wrote the Guidelines for the Psychosocial Evaluation of Suspected Psychological Maltreatment (AP SAC, 1995; 2017), and is an expert witness in capital and custody cases involving psychological maltreatment. Throughout that time she has trained graduate students in individual psychological assessment and diagnosis. She is a licensed psychologist and has conducted and/or supervised hundreds of individual psychological evaluations for individuals ages 2 to 50. Among her many publications is a co-authored graduate text, Brassard & Boehm (2007), Preschool Assessment: Perspective and Strategies. New York: Guilford Press. Since 1995 she has been a consultant testing agencies on applicant requests for accommodations on their exams for neurodevelopmental and mental health problems. She is a fellow of the American Psychological Association and past president of the Council of Directors of School Psychology Programs (CDSPP).

Stuart Hart, PhD, is Deputy Director of the International Institute for Child Rights and Development, Victoria, British Columbia; and Founding Director of the Office for the Study of the Psychological Rights of the Child and Professor Emeritus of the School of Education, Indiana University-Purdue University-Indianapolis. He is the present Chairperson for the Children’s Rights Section within the Child Well-Being and Advocacy Committee and the Past-President of the National Committee for the Rights of the Child (USA). Dr. Hart was Co-Chair of the Secretariat of the Global Network of Research and Development Institutions which worked directly with and for the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child in programs to advance accountability to obligations of the Convention on the Rights of the Child. He was a member of the NGO Advisory Panel for the UN Secretary General’s Study on Violence Against Children and a co-creator and director of CRED-PRO, an international program of child rights education for professionals serving children and families. He is a consulting editor for Child Abuse and Neglect – The International Journal and on the editorial board of School Psychology International and has presented and published extensively on psychological maltreatment of children and on children's rights.