CLAYTON BAILEY • CERAMICS AND SCULPTURE

Clayton Bailey's ceramics and sculpture exploit the expressive aspects of clay both structurally and symbolically. His pots are hand formed by squeezing, pinching, and rolling the pliable material. His subjects include Critters, First Aid Boxes, Poor Boxes or Collection Boxes. The Critter, a strange and fantastic creature appearing in several different humorous mutations, is related to the fantasies of Bosch, Ensor, and the Surrealists. The same humor is exhibited in his First Aid and Collection Boxes which were inspired by the study of first aid kits, church interiors and tombstones. Bailey's art expresses the primitive and ancient hand forming process of clay objects with sophistication and wit.
