Discussion Items
- Peer institutions
  o Dean Hewes discussed work to identify an appropriate set of peer institutions for graduate education. Having a perspective of what peer institutions are doing can be useful in many areas, such as determining competitiveness of graduate stipends and identifying best practices for inclusivity and graduate student recruitment.
Currently, we often use the Big XII for this kind of benchmarking. However, some of the Big XII schools are structurally quite different from OU with respect to how graduate education is funded and organized.

To develop a new set, we started with the Carnegie Classification of Institutions of Higher Education 2015 data set. We applied filters to restrict the list to Carnegie R1 public institutions with comprehensive research doctoral programs, an overall enrollment profile of majority undergraduate (10-49% graduate student), and four-year, full-time, large, primarily- or highly-residential undergraduate profiles. New England, far west, outlying areas, and rural schools were removed. Ranges were applied to remove institutions with >11,000 total degrees per year, research expenditures over $500 million or below $100 million, and with less than 700 or more than 2,000 faculty.

The resulting set of peer institutions will be used for institution-level research, comparisons, and benchmarking. For national comparisons of individual graduate programs, we may need separate lists of peer or aspirational peer institutions.

Subcommittee Reports

Dr. Ben Holt submitted the following report of the Academic Program Review Committee meeting:

- The APR committee had a busy February. We first met with Dean Mary Margaret Holt from Fine Arts to discuss the self-study reports for multiple programs under her purview. Her viewpoints were insightful regarding both individual programs and the many collaborative interactions between these groups. We additionally met with external reviewers for the School of Musical Theatre (Dr. Linda Starkey, Wichita State University and Dr. Robert Hetherington, University of Memphis), the School of Visual Arts (Dr. Stacey Sloboda, Southern Illinois University and Dr. Michael Krueger, University of Kansas), and the College of Journalism and Mass Communication (Dr. Hub Brown, Syracuse University and Dr. Spiro Kiousis, University of Florida). The aim of the exit interviews was to receive feedback from these external reviewers while their thoughts were still fresh, although each group will additionally provide us with a detailed report within the next few weeks. While we specifically requested reviewer input on opportunities for programmatic improvement, most notable in each exit interview was their positive impression of OU programs, especially regarding the impressive faculty devotion to programmatic quality in a financially difficult period.

Dr. David P. Moxley provided the following information about the Faculty Senate Meeting held on February 13, 2017:

- Visit the website of the Institute for the Study of Human Flourishing within the university (ou.edu/flourish) to learn more about support for the design of courses to incorporate ideas and concepts regarding human flourishing as an ethics movement in pedagogy. Note that the institute will accept proposals for course development or modification until April 1, 2017.
- There was a discussion on the call for nominations for university councils, committees, and boards. The university is still fielding these nominations, so interested faculty are welcome to self-nominate or nominate colleagues.
- The WGS Center for Social Justice is offering a workshop series entitled Diversity Ally for Faculty. Contact Megan Smith in the OU Women’s and Gender Studies Center for Social Justice: mgs@ou.edu or 405-325-5787. Registration can be found at www.eventbrite.com/o/the-center-for-social-justice-12692880536.
- There was considerable discussion by Dean Suzette Grillot regarding the support of international students on campus. Concern for the well-being of international students is very high on campus, and the Graduate Council may want to discuss ways that members or the council as a whole can reach out to our international graduate students to welcome them, offer reassurance, and offer on-going support.
• To address faculty inclusion, there was discussion of the possibility of creating a Faculty Senate committee, the focus of which is faculty diversity, equity, and inclusion. What follows is the language taken verbatim from the proposal guiding the establishment of the committee:

Charge: This committee is responsible to the Faculty Senate for reviewing and recommending university policy and practice on issues related to faculty diversity, equity, and inclusion.

In carrying out this responsibility, the committee shall:
(1) Investigate, discover, and promote best practices for faculty recruiting and retention.
(2) Gather and review information on the allocation of university resources (awards, research grants, prizes, etc.) and advancements (tenure, promotion, named professorships, etc.) relative to metrics of diversity, equity, and inclusion.
(3) Suggest to the Senate appropriate proposals, strategies, and forums for advancing the goals of the committee.
(4) Work with the Office of University Community to set priorities, advance policy, and follow up on the progress of proposed initiatives.
(5) Report at least yearly to the Senate and, upon approval, the President and the Provost.

Operating Procedures
The Committee shall formulate its own operating procedures, which shall include:
(1) The election of a chair from among the faculty members of the committee;
(2) provision for a sub-committee of the committee to which non-members of the committee may be appointed by the Faculty Senate, if the Senate deems such additions appropriate; and
(3) provision for liaison with all appropriate councils and committees.

The committee will have seven members elected by the Faculty Senate who serve three-year staggered terms.

Dr. Sanna Pederson submitted the following report from the February 16, 2017 meeting of the OUHSC Graduate Council:
• The HSC Graduate Council meeting on February 16 consisted of reports from various committees, since there was no old or new business on the agenda. The Faculty Senate report announced a new University Community Bias Hotline. The Graduate Student Association reported on fundraisers and opportunities to volunteer at the food bank as a community service activity. The report from Employee Benefits emphasized that if there are any problems making the transition from Blue Cross to Cigna, it should be reported, because Cigna pledged identical service as Blue Cross for their first year. Finally, there was a report on the Graduate Student competition, "Flash Talks." The meeting adjourned at 12:30 pm.

Dr. James Sluss, Dean of the Tulsa Graduate College, offered the following:
• Jabar Shumate, Vice President for the University Community in Norman, visited to discuss a possible Office of University Community on the Tulsa campus.
• They held a successful Giving Day on February 28th.
