The College Board, in cooperation with several publishers and colleges, has developed specifications for a Common Data Set [CDS] for colleges and universities that can be used for analysis and comparison of institutions. The CDS contains data on such topics as admissions, enrollment, retention, classes, activities, policies, and costs for each contributing institution. This data is collected by survey, and is used in numerous publications and rankings.

For information on current admission requirements: Admissions, Records & Registration or to estimate costs for you or your student: Bursar Office
