Advanced Programs – Course Syllabus

Course Title:
Conflict Resolution

Course Number:
HR 5343-104

Course Description:
The broad goals of this seminar include:

1. Supporting student learning about human emotions and cognition, their neurological and experiential underpinning to interpersonal interactions, mindsight, as well as the nature and dynamics of conflict, behavioral and cultural issues underlying interpersonal, group, and intergroup conflict, and strategies to resolve and reduce the negative impact of conflict;

2. Facilitating the enhancement of students’ emotional and social intelligence, empathy, and their interpersonal communication and conflict resolution skills with an emphasis on capabilities immediately applicable to their personal and professional lives;

3. Supporting student efforts to apply conflict resolution concepts and methods to their interpersonal, group, inter-group, and organizational situations.

This course will be thought-provoking, active, challenging, and (I hope) engaging. It will include a combination of pre-class reading and writing assignments, nonfiction videos, mini-lectures, case studies, group discussions, interactive exercises, small group activities, in-class group presentations, role-playing, life experience reviews or rehearsals, and related individual objective setting and action planning. These activities involve participants in a variety of conceptual, analytical, and behavioral skill-building efforts.

Course Objectives:
As a result of this seminar, students will

- Recognize several contemporary theories and concepts regarding the nature of conflict which pertain to interpersonal, group and inter-group relations;
- Discuss these issues, also observe, and identify related dynamics through a combination of media-based and live interactions;
- Recognize the linkages among a range of human emotions, emotional and social intelligence, interpersonal neurobiology, positive psychology, and additional contemporary sources in psychology and social psychology as related to power, presence, anger and related emotions, conflict, and conflict resolution;
- Recognize the major elements of interpersonal communications and conflict resolution methods; demonstrate the application of these methods and skills in role-play, real case situations, and other activities;
- Demonstrate an understanding of conflict and conflict resolution issues and approaches through case study analysis, small group work and related presentations, discussion, and written essays;
- Apply the knowledge and skills learned from this seminar to personal and professional situations and demonstrate your understanding through case study analysis, written assignments, and the demonstration of skills through role play and other activities.
Course Outline:

I. Course introduction and overview

II. Individual considerations, including emotional and social intelligence, human emotions, interpersonal neurobiology considerations, and other issues that affect our relationships, reactions, and approaches to conflict

III. The role and importance of societal factors, including culture, perception, expectations, attributions (including attribution error), stereotypes, and their impacts on the generation of conflict and approaches to it

IV. Interpersonal communication skills and their applications to conflict and methods to support conflict management and conflict resolution:
  a. The effective and ineffective use of questions and other forms of inquiry
  b. Attending, active listening, and responding skills, including discerning our emotions and those of others and the effective expression of empathy
  c. Expressive and concrete forms of communication
  d. Assertive communication and the skill of useful feedback

V. The nature and dynamics of conflict, including its moves, counter moves, and related patterns of behavior

VI. The effects of power—personal power and social power—on personal experience, interpersonal relations, as well as their effects on the nature of conflict, functional and dysfunctional approaches, and strategies to manage or resolve conflict

VII. Conflict styles, dysfunctional and functional approaches to conflict and to conflict resolution, including:
  a. The nature of game playing, the role of blame, demeaning others or other negative forms of behavior, and related interpersonal patterns and their impacts
  b. The application of interpersonal skills to conflict resolution
  c. Methods and steps to support conflict resolution, including approaches that strengthen relationships while resolving conflict.

Assignments, Grading and Due Dates:

Attendance, participation, reading of the texts, handouts, and designated Videos are required. Course requirements fall into three categories: (1) Participation and effective completion of in-class assignments and activities, (2) two short pre-class papers, and (3) a final paper, the latter due three weeks from the conclusion of the course (1/3/17).

Pre-class assignments

Initial tasks – 2% of grade

1. Approximately a month before the beginning of class, send me an email (Marilyn.A.Durbin-1@ou.edu) and put the title of the course in the subject line.

2. I will respond with an email to you and will attach a short questionnaire. Please return the questionnaire. This will give me a better idea of each student’s prior education, training and experience as related to conflict resolution. Your responses will support my tailoring the class to meet student interests and experience.

Pre-class Preparations, reading and written assignments – 33% of grade

1. Watch the first of three DVD discs from the video set, This Emotional Life: In Search of Ourselves...and Happiness. The first DVD in the set is entitled Family, Friends & Lovers. Watching this and the other DVDs provides a relatively fast means of exploring a range of emotional and cognitive issues that affect human relations and represent underlying factors involved in conflict situations. After reading the first two of your texts (listed below), write an essay of at least two pages, relating a topic featured in the first DVD to issues associated with conflict, its resolution and potential for building healthy relationships.

2. Second, read the text, The Dynamics of Conflict Resolution: A Practitioner’s Guide by Bernard Mayer. Based upon your understanding of the text, select a theme, either regarding the nature of conflict or a related approach to conflict resolution, and write an essay of three pages or more. Explain the meanings and potential implications of this information. Demonstrate effective writing skills and citations in your preparation of this essay.

3. Third, read Developing Your Conflict Competence by Runde and Flanagan (2010). Read up to at least page 71. (The remainder may be read prior to the second weekend of class). We will work from parts of this book for some in-class exercises.

4. Fourth, read The Eight Essential Steps to Conflict Resolution by Weeks, D. (1994). This is a “fast read.” If time constraints affect reading before class begins, you could read it during the week between class sessions. We will work with the content of this book during the second weekend of class.

5. When I send the questionnaire, I will also send you additional instructions and a guide to a few YouTube video presentations. These pertain to interpersonal neurobiology and related topics. You will be expected to watch these short videos and write a brief explanation about the linkages you perceive between your texts and the information contained in the videos. This explanation should involve at least two typed pages with appropriate citations.

You may send me your three short papers by email prior to the second Saturday of the class.

Participation, effective completion of in-class assignments, and activities – 28% of grade

This course requirement pre-supposes the active engagement of students throughout the class period. Participants will be involved in a variety of in-class activities, small group assignments, and a couple of additional videos. Activities include the daily completion of short feedback forms, group presentations, etc. Participants’ active involvement in these efforts supports their earning 28% of their grades.

Post-class papers – 37%

Following the conclusion of the class, watch the third of the DVDs from the set This Emotional Life: In Search of Ourselves ...and Happiness. (The third DVD is entitled, Rethinking Happiness.) In a brief two-page essay, write about a topic addressed in the third DVD and the importance of that topic to issues associated with conflict and its resolution.

Following the conclusion of the class, select a theme that pertains to at least two of the three texts, and write a paper demonstrating your understanding of the content and the implications you identify. Select at least one book that you did not address in your pre-course paper. In addition, relate your explanations about this theme to information and/or experiences in class. This paper should involve at least three pages, reflect the quality of writing expected of a graduate student, and include appropriate citations.

The two post-class papers will be due to me within three weeks after the end of class (by 1/02/17).

If you have questions about these assignments, feel free to send me an email, and I will attempt to provide additional clarification. Also by the second evening of class, I will respond to questions about these assignments and provide additional clarification, as needed.

POLICIES AND NOTICES

Attendance/Grade Policy

Attendance and participation in interaction, individual assignments, group exercises, simulations, role playing, etc. are valuable aspects of any course because much of the learning comes from discussions in class with other students. It is expected that you attend all classes and be on time except for excused emergencies.

Excused absences are given for professor mandated activities or legally required activities such as emergencies or military assignments. It is the policy of the University to excuse absences of students that result from religious observances and to provide without penalty for the rescheduling of examinations and additional required class work that may fall on religious holidays. Unavoidable personal emergencies, including (but not limited to) serious illness; delays in getting to class because of accidents, etc.; deaths and funerals, and hazardous road conditions will be excused.

If you are obtaining financial assistance (TA, STAP, FA, VA, Scholarship, etc.) to pay all or part of your tuition cost, you must follow your funding agency/institution’s policy regarding “I” (Incomplete) grades unless the timeline is longer than what the University policy allows then you must adhere to the University policy. Students who receive Financial Aid must resolve/complete any “I” (Incomplete) grades by the end of the term or he/she may be placed on “financial aid probation.” If the “I” grade is not resolved/completed by the end of the following term, the student’s Financial Aid may be suspended make the student ineligible for further Financial Aid.

Students are responsible for meeting the guidelines of Tuition Assistance and Veterans Assistance. See the education counselor at your local education center for a complete description of your TA or VA requirements.

Academic Integrity and Student Conduct

Academic integrity means honesty and responsibility in scholarship. Academic assignments exist to help students learn; grades exist to show how fully this goal is attained. Therefore, all work and all grades should result from the student's own understanding and effort.

Academic misconduct is any act which improperly affects the evaluation of a student’s academic performance or achievement. Misconduct occurs when the student either knows or reasonably should know that the act constitutes misconduct. Academic misconduct includes: cheating and using unauthorized materials on examinations and other assignments; improper collaboration, submitting the same assignment for different classes (self-plagiarism); fabrication, forgery, alteration of documents, lying, etc.…in order to obtain an academic advantage; assisting others in academic misconduct; attempting to commit academic misconduct; destruction of property, hacking, etc.…; intimidation and interference with integrity process; and plagiarism. All students should review the Student’s Guide to Academic Integrity at http://integrity.ou.edu/students_guide.html

Students and faculty each have responsibility for maintaining an appropriate learning environment. All students should review policies regarding student conduct at http://studentconduct.ou.edu/
