Course Title:
Democracies and Democratization

Course Number:
PSC 5653-222

Course Description:
Recent events in the Middle East and North Africa remind us of the fascinating and uncertain dynamics of democratization—and of just how much is at stake in democratization processes.

This course has four objectives. The first is conceptual, as we seek to understand the meanings of democracy as these emerge in specific historic contexts and as these relate to other kinds of regimes.

The second is causal, as we seek to understand how different factors facilitate and obstruct the genesis of contemporary democracies and their survival. Among the principal casual factors we will study are modernization and development, ideas and beliefs, societal divisions and movements, political and military institutions, and international forces.

The third objective is applicative; as we seek understand how these casual factors play out in regional and case studies, such as what we are witnessing in the Middle East and other places today.

The fourth objective is evaluative, as we seek to evaluate the actual consequences of democracy and democratization in cases from various regions.

This course will be taught in a lecture-discussion format and it has two major writing assignments. The first assignment is based on the assigned readings for the class and asks students to respond to specific questions about the texts. The pre-class writing assignment (10-15 pages) is due via D2L two days before the first day of class. The second is a research paper in which students compare democratization processes in two countries of their choice, making use of the concepts and theories learned in class. The final research paper is due via D2L three weeks after the last day of class (12-15 pages).

It is essential that you obtain the assigned text early enough to read it and to write the pre-class writing assignment on time. The specific details of the assignment will be found in the content section of the D2L site for this course, but you should get your book as soon as you enroll and start reading.

Course Objectives:

- To understand the historical origins, meanings, and values accorded democracy.
- To understand the principal causal factors shaping democracy’s genesis and survival.
- To understand how these causal factors play out in specific historical contexts leading to the success or failure of democratization.

Assignments, Grading and Due Dates:

Pre-class Assignment: (30%)

This class requires a significant amount of pre-class reading and a substantial writing assignment (no longer than 14 pages) that must be completed before the first class meeting. Students will need to reserve time in the weeks leading up to the first day of class to complete this assignment.

The pre-class reading and writing assignments will be available at the D2L site for this course approximately one month before the first class meeting. If you cannot access the D2L site, contact the instructor at ekenney@ou.edu to receive the assignment. It is the student’s responsibility to obtain and complete the assignment before the first class meeting.

It is essential in this class that you follow the citation and documentation requirements set out in the assignment. Failure to cite the sources of all information used and failure to identify all directly quoted text as such in plagiarism and may lead to sanctions. See the writing assignment instructions and http://integrity.ou.edu for more detailed information about avoiding plagiarism. Note that for this class, you must provide page numbers for all references to both paraphrased information and direct quotes.

The completed pre-class writing assignment is due in the D2L drop-box by midnight on the Sunday before the first class meeting. Bring an identical printed copy of the writing assignment to the first class meeting. Late papers may receive a one-letter grade deduction for each day late.
Final Exam/Paper: (40%)

You will be asked to write a paper of approximately 12-15 pages that will be due in the D2L drop-box on Sunday at midnight three weeks after our last class meeting. The specific exam question and assignment will be given at the end of the class. As with the pre-class assignment, it is essential that you avoid sanctions for plagiarism by citing the source of all information and ideas used and by identifying all directly quoted text as such.

POLICIES AND NOTICES

Attendance/Grade Policy

Attendance and participation in interaction, individual assignments, group exercises, simulations, role playing, etc. are valuable aspects of any course because much of the learning comes from discussions in class with other students. It is expected that you attend all classes and be on time except for excused emergencies.

Excused absences are given for professor mandated activities or legally required activities such as emergencies or military assignments. It is the policy of the University to excuse absences of students that result from religious observances and to provide without penalty for the rescheduling of examinations and additional required class work that may fall on religious holidays. Unavoidable personal emergencies, including (but not limited to) serious illness; delays in getting to class because of accidents, etc.; deaths and funerals, and hazardous road conditions will be excused.

If you are obtaining financial assistance (TA, STAP, FA, VA, Scholarship, etc.) to pay all or part of your tuition cost, you must follow your funding agency/institution’s policy regarding “I” (Incomplete) grades unless the timeline is longer than what the University policy allows then you must adhere to the University policy. Students who receive Financial Aid must resolve/complete any “I” (Incomplete) grades by the end of the term or he/she may be placed on “financial aid probation.” If the “I” grade is not resolved/completed by the end of the following term, the student’s Financial Aid may be suspended make the student ineligible for further Financial Aid.

Students are responsible for meeting the guidelines of Tuition Assistance and Veterans Assistance. See the education counselor at your local education center for a complete description of your TA or VA requirements.

Academic Integrity and Student Conduct

Academic integrity means honesty and responsibility in scholarship. Academic assignments exist to help students learn; grades exist to show how fully this goal is attained. Therefore all work and all grades should result from the student's own understanding and effort.

Academic misconduct is any act which improperly affects the evaluation of a student’s academic performance or achievement. Misconduct occurs when the student either knows or reasonably should know that the act constitutes misconduct. Academic misconduct includes: cheating and using unauthorized materials on examinations and other assignments; improper collaboration, submitting the same assignment for different classes (self-plagiarism); fabrication, forgery, alteration of documents, lying, etc…in order to obtain an academic advantage; assisting others in academic misconduct; attempting to commit academic misconduct; destruction of property, hacking, etc…; intimidation and interference with integrity process; and plagiarism. All students should review the Student’s Guide to Academic Integrity at http://integrity.ou.edu/students_guide.html

Students and faculty each have responsibility for maintaining an appropriate learning environment. All students should review policies regarding student conduct at http://studentconduct.ou.edu/
