Warren Edwards is the Executive Director, Community and Regional Research Institute (CARRI) with offices in Oak Ridge, Tennessee and Washington, DC. The mission of CARRI is to help develop and then share critical paths that any community or region may take to strengthen its ability to prepare for, respond to, and rapidly recover from significant man-made or natural disasters with minimal downtime of basic community, government, and business services. CARRI believes that a resilient America must be anchored in resilient American communities. CARRI combines community engagement activities with practical research activities. CARRI’s expertise is based on knowledge and evidence. CARRI’s work has been incorporated into the web-enabled Community Resilience System and the Campus Resilience Enhancement System.
