Course Title:
Theoretical Foundations of Human Relations

Course Number:
HR 5003-221

Course Description:
Theory should inform practice. Whether managing work problems or engaging in psychotherapy, the theoretical foundations of the human relations professional provide a conceptual model for practical efforts to effect change or resolve conflicts. This course is designed to expose students to fundamental theories upon which practice in human relations is based, and to facilitate a greater understanding in how these theories can be applied by the human relations professional. Emphasis is placed upon counseling theory but the course applies more broadly to the various dimensions of human relations, including organizational theory and management approaches. The course is intended to provide a multi-cultural and social justice perspective for interacting with individuals in helping and work settings and to promote progressive thinking regarding diversity.

Course Objectives:

The objectives of this course are to:

- understand the fundamental principles of various theoretical orientations that form the foundation of human relations practice;
- learn specific practices and techniques associated with theoretical orientations, in order to enhance intervention strategies, whether in a counseling environment or other setting;
- enhance the student’s own preferred theoretical orientation and to increase understanding on how one’s theoretical orientation may affect behavior, perspectives, biases, and value systems when interacting with other people or in a group situation;
- develop further self-awareness about identity related to race, ethnicity, gender, and sexual orientation, and recognize their salience in human relations practice;
- develop critical thinking in relation to theories, especially regarding the role of theory in guiding ethical behavior in the practice of human relations; and

Assignments, Grading and Due Dates:

1. Paper #1: The first written assignment is a two-part paper on management theory and on organizational theory.

   Part one: Based on your reading of Morgan (2006), the Organizational Management articles on desire2learn, and at least 2 other professional references in management or leadership theory that you like (from articles for class or other scholarly sources), write a 3-5 paper in this section, detailing your theoretical approach to management. You should make ten major points in which you specify and prioritize your top principles in managing effectively and humanely. Note: I want you to outline your perspective, but do not write this paper in the first person. Present your ideas using the third person (e.g., “Effective managers should keep in mind the following ten principles of...”)

   Part two: Submit your deadline papers along with your ten major points. You will receive feedback on your paper within three weeks of the due date. leadership…”). However, avoid referring to yourself (e.g., “the author believes…”). Imagine you are writing a scholarly paper to a professional audience, presenting your ideas with scholarly support.

Part two: Select two of the chapters in Morgan’s text (chapter 2-9) to study in more depth. After studying your selected chapter, apply the organizational theory represented in that chapter to a workplace or organization that you know about. Illustrate how the theory enhances understanding of that organization. Your analysis of the organization should be 3-5 pages. It is acceptable to use the first person for this assignment.

Also include a multicultural and social justice critique of the theory throughout the paper. Follow APA style in citing references that you use. The paper should be typed, double-spaced, with a cover sheet and no more than 6-10 pages (not counting cover sheet and references). Pay careful attention to writing style and carefully edit your papers. [30 points] Due: the first day of class. Please, submit in the appropriate drop box on Desire2Learn.

2. Paper #2: There are two parts to the first written assignment. Part One is a self-exploration of the helping process; Part Two is an application of an established counseling theory

Part One: Theories often emerge from an examination of fundamental questions like: “what is the essence of helping?”, “what do I actually do when I help someone?” “How do people change?” or “what am I trying to accomplish as a helping professional in a human service?” Based on the reading for this course and your personal experience, write a 3-5 page section describing and critiquing how you help other persons. Note: As above, use 3rd person to present your theory of change/helping. Basically, Part One should be a statement of your own theoretical orientation to human relations and may be stated from the point of view of the counselor, manager, or other helping professional. In Part One, you should have 3 references other than your textbook.

Part Two: Select one or two major theoretical orientations from your text. Then choose a real or imaginary situation to present as a written case study in which you apply the theory you have chosen to that situation, (e.g., applying behavioral theory when counseling an adolescent, or existential theory in managing a work group, etc.). The situation may be in a clinical setting or a personal setting or in various professional settings (e.g., as a human resource manager, a civil rights advocate, an agency administrator, etc.). The study may be focused on an individual, family, group, or organization. The way in which you present your case study and theoretical application is up to you. One acceptable way is: a) to present a short vignette describing the situation; b) to write actual dialogue between the helper and helpee illustrating the theory being used; and c) to draw conclusions which highlight what theoretical premises and strategies were being applied, and why. Most of your emphasis should be placed on identifying key points of the theory under discussion and showing how you would apply these ideas in a practice setting. It is acceptable to use the 1st person for this assignment.

You should also include an analysis of multicultural or social justice issues involved in your case. Part Two should be of 3-5 pages in length. In Part Two, you should have two other references, in addition to the text, related to the particular theoretical orientation you are taking.

Your paper, consisting of the two parts, should not exceed ten pages (not counting cover page and references). Follow APA style in citing references that you use. The paper should be typed, double-spaced, with a cover sheet. Pay careful attention to writing style and carefully edit your papers. [30 points] Due: two weeks after the last day of class; please, put in the drop box on Desire2Learn.

3. Participation: The class is based upon an interactive learning model and requires active participation by students during discussion and critical thinking formats. [10 points]

4. Final Exam/“Think Tanks”: A final exam will be given which is intended to measure the student’s working knowledge and ability to apply selected theories studied in the reading and lecture series. The class will be divided into small groups that will function as a “think tank” in solving an assigned human relations problem. The small groups will present their theoretical solutions to the rest of the class. [30 points]
Grading: This is a letter-graded course: A, B, C, D, or F.
