Course Title:
Democracies and Democratization

Course Number:
PSC 5653-101

Course Description:
Recent events in the Middle East and North Africa remind us of the fascinating and uncertain dynamics of democratization—and of just how much is at stake in democratization processes.

This course has two objectives. The first is to reexamine our understandings of the meanings and values of democracy by tracing modern democracy’s roots in three traditions: a democratic (strongly associated with Athenian democracy), a republican tradition (strongly associated with the Roman Republic), and a liberal tradition (strongly associated with Great Britain). After tracing the development of these historical experiences and some debates about the meanings and values of democracy that accompanied each, we examine how these three traditions came together in the American Founding, and what significance this has for our understanding of democracy today.

The second objective of this course is to understand how different casual factors facilitate and obstruct the genesis of contemporary democracies (or the persistence of authoritarianism) and the survival of democratic regimes (for their collapse). Among the principal casual factors we will study are the political belief systems of leaders and the public, socioeconomic development and social structure, the relationship between the state and civil society, the role of the military, political institutions (such as constitutional, electoral, and party systems), conflicts between ethno-linguistic and religious identity groups, and international factors ranging from international organizations, diffusion effects, and peaceful pressure, to sanctions and military intervention. We will examine the state of social science knowledge about these causal relationships and then turn to regional and case studies of democratization to understand how these casual factors play out in different historical contexts—such as what we are witnessing in the Middle East today.

This course has two major writing assignments, one to be turned in on the Sunday before the first day of class and the other to be turned in three weeks after the last day of class. It is essential that you obtain the assigned text early enough to read it and to write the pre-class paper writing assignment on time. The specific details of the assignment will be found in the content section of the D2L site for this course, but you should get your book as soon as you enroll and start reading.

Course Objectives:
- To understand the historical origins, meanings, and values accorded democracy.
- To understand the principal causal factors shaping democracy’s genesis and survival.
- To understand how these causal factors play out in specific historical contexts leading to the success or failure of democratization.

Assignments, Grading and Due Dates:

Pre-class Assignment: (25%)
This class requires a significant amount of pre-class reading and a substantial writing assignment (no longer than 14 pages) that must be completed before the first class meeting. Students will need to reserve time in the weeks leading up to the first day of class to complete this assignment.

The pre-class reading and writing assignments will be available at the D2L site for this course approximately one month before the first class meeting. If you cannot access the D2L site, contact the instructor at ckenney@ou.edu to receive the assignment. It is the student’s responsibility to obtain and complete the assignment before the first class meeting.

It is essential in this class that you follow the citation and documentation requirements set out in the assignment. Failure to cite the sources of all information used and failure to identify all directly quoted text as such in plagiarism and may lead to sanctions. See the writing assignment instructions and http://integrity.ou.edu for more detailed information about avoiding plagiarism. Note that for this class, you must provide page numbers for all references to both paraphrased information and direct quotes.

The completed pre-class writing assignment is due in the D2L drop-box by midnight on the Sunday before the first class meeting. Bring an identical printed copy of the writing assignment to the first class meeting. Late papers may receive a one-letter grade deduction for each day late.
In-class Quizzes: (20%)
Several quizzes will be given during the course to test your knowledge of the specific region and country studies included in the pre-class reading assignment. These readings should be completed before the beginning of the course since for most students there will be little time available once the course begins.

Final Exam/Paper: (40%)
You will be asked to write a paper of approximately 12-15 pages that will be due in the D2L drop-box on Sunday at midnight three weeks after our last class meeting. The specific exam question and assignment will be given at the end of the class. As with the pre-class assignment, it is essential that you avoid sanctions for plagiarism by citing the source of all information and ideas used and by identifying all directly quoted text as such.

Grading:
This is a letter-graded course: A, B, C, D, or F.

POLICIES AND NOTICES

Attendance/Grade Policy

Attendance and participation in interaction, individual assignments, group exercises, simulations, role playing, etc. are valuable aspects of any course because much of the learning comes from discussions in class with other students. It is expected that you attend all classes and be on time except for excused emergencies.

Excused absences are given for professor mandated activities or legally required activities such as emergencies or military assignments. It is the policy of the University to excuse absences of students that result from religious observances and to provide without penalty for the rescheduling of examinations and additional required class work that may fall on religious holidays. Unavoidable personal emergencies, including (but not limited to) serious illness; delays in getting to class because of accidents, etc.; deaths and funerals, and hazardous road conditions will be excused.

If you are obtaining financial assistance (TA, STAP, FA, VA, Scholarship, etc.) to pay all or part of your tuition cost, you must follow your funding agency/institution’s policy regarding “I” (Incomplete) grades unless the timeline is longer than what the University policy allows then you must adhere to the University policy. Students who receive Financial Aid must resolve/complete any “I” (Incomplete) grades by the end of the term or he/she may be placed on “financial aid probation.” If the “I” grade is not resolved/completed by the end of the following term, the student’s Financial Aid may be suspended make the student ineligible for further Financial Aid.

Students are responsible for meeting the guidelines of Tuition Assistance and Veterans Assistance. See the education counselor at your local education center for a complete description of your TA or VA requirements.

Academic Honesty

Honesty is a fundamental precept in all academic activities and … [you] have a special obligation to observe the highest standards of honesty. Academic misconduct in any form is inimical to the purposes and functions of the University and is therefore unacceptable and is rigorously proscribed. Academic misconduct includes:

- cheating (using unauthorized materials, information, or study aids in any academic exercise), plagiarism, falsification of records, unauthorized possession of examinations, intimidation, and any and all other actions that may improperly affect the evaluation of a student’s academic performance or achievement; assisting others in any such act; or attempting to engage in such acts.

All acts of academic misconduct will be reported and adjudicated as prescribed by the student code of the University of Oklahoma. All students should review the Student’s Guide to Academic Integrity.
