Does my course have a schedule?

All CIDL courses have schedules to some degree. Some have basic course sequences while others have specific dates that things are due. All 300 section courses have course schedules that include specific dates for when course items are due. Section 400 courses often times have no required dates specifically but may still have restrictions on the order in which you are to complete your assignments.

To find your course schedule there are many options. Many courses have a “Schedule” tab in them located on the main menu bar as seen in this example:

This is the easiest way to find your schedule. In some courses, you may find a schedule listing specific due dates on the course homepage. You can also find schedule information on the content tab under the heading: “Course Information.” Another way of checking on due dates is to look at your assignments on the “Assignments/Exams” tab or on the “Dropbox” tab. If an assignment has a specific due date it will be listed underneath that item in the course as seen in the below example:
It is important that you adhere to your course schedule and not miss due dates. If you have missed a due date, you should contact your instructor to discuss the matter with him or her.

D2L has a notification system that you can setup for yourself to remind you either by email or by text message (SMS) when you have assignments due. In order to set up notifications, follow these steps:

As you work through this course, if you have any questions related to the course content, please contact your instructor.
