The Arthur B. Adams Society Dinner

November 15, 2013

Sam Noble Oklahoma Museum of Natural History
Welcome to the fourth annual celebration of the Arthur B. Adams Society. Your involvement supports our faculty’s goal of preparing our students as leaders for our state, nation and world. Specifically, the Adams Society provides the means to deliver transformational student learning and professional development opportunities amidst a rapidly changing global landscape. This evening, we highlight the accomplishments of many of our students. Following are a few examples of our students’ success on both the local and national stage:

An interdisciplinary student team in Price’s nationally ranked entrepreneurship program took honors at both the state and regional level by winning the Donald W. Reynolds Tri-State Collegiate Business Plan competition.

Finance students from Price College’s Student Investment Fund were named the top portfolio managers at the Texas Investment Portfolio Symposium where our undergraduates bested the efforts of MBA students from Rice, University of Texas and Texas A&M, among others.

JCPenney Leadership students organized and led Price College’s Women in Business Leadership conference, which underscores the college’s commitment to diversity and student engagement.

MBA students placed first in the Wells Fargo Case Competition, a national case competition featuring a real-world financing situation that was once presented to Wells Fargo bankers.

Over the past five years, student participation in the Robert M. Zinke Energy Management Program has more than doubled while job placement approaches 100 percent.

Tonight, as we gather alongside our students, I want to thank each of you for making Price College such a special part of the University of Oklahoma.

CLOSING REMARKS AND CELEBRATION
David L. Boren, who has served Oklahoma as governor and U.S. senator, became the thirteenth president of the University of Oklahoma in November 1994. He is the first person in state history to have served in all three positions. Under Boren’s leadership, the University of Oklahoma has developed and emerged as a “pacesetter university in American public higher education,” with over 20 major new programs initiated since his inauguration. The number of new facilities started or completed on the campus during the Boren years has matched the explosion in new programs. Since 1994, more than $2 billion in construction projects have been completed or are under way on OU’s three campuses.

Above all, the Boren years have been marked by an emphasis on putting students first. There is not a university president in the country who is more committed to students as his number one priority. He teaches a freshman-level course in political science each semester and is one of the few presidents of major universities to teach.

Mike McConnell received his BBA in petroleum land management from OU in 1982. He is a member of and past chairman of the Price College Board of Advisors, and received the Price College Distinguished Alumni Award last spring. Currently, he serves as president of Jones Energy, LLC, an independent oil and gas exploration company headquartered in Austin.

Before serving as president for Jones Energy, McConnell served as chairman and chief executive officer of the generation and production group at Enron. Prior to that position, he served as chairman and CEO of Enron Global Markets, LLC, which included eight global trading and origination businesses. McConnell also has written a non-fiction book, “Just Because You Can Doesn’t Mean You Should,” which focuses on lessons learned in business and keys to success. He and his spouse, Chris, live in Austin and have two children, Claire and Michael, both currently students at Price College.
