THINGS TO KNOW

• Fly through the sky like you have super powers. Find this playground equipment nestled between the towers.
• Don’t call this newspaper tycoon Mr. Focker. Find his statue behind a building just north of Walker.
• Being a “heavy sleeper” takes on a new meaning for this statue near the Fine Arts Center who is day-dreaming.
• Trust the loyal knights in the College of Engineering. This old cannon is south of Felgar Hall in a clearing.
• Not to be confused with the electro pop band, this spot on the South Oval is sunken in land.
• The dish ran away with the spoon and left behind this holder. Kiss someone here and you’ll marry them when you get older.
• How these crossed the pond from the UK, nobody knows. This is where Superman would go to change his clothes.
• Dedicated to football players who scored off the charts, their statues are west of the stadium in this park.
• These nutty critters are all over campus, but aren’t OU’s mascot. Get a picture with one if you’ve had your rabies shot.
• Your path to OU starts here if you’re just a beginner, This building is also known as the Visitor’s Center.
• The Class of 1907 sure is an attractive bunch. Find their picture in the Union, then get some lunch.
• Older books can be helpful when you need to cite your facts. They are found in this section of the library known as the stacks.
• This is the Mecca of Soonerland. On game day, it holds over 85,000 OU fans.
• Students in this college learn how to teach. Look up for their school house bell – it’s quite out of reach!
