Purpose of the Course: This course will introduce you to Native American worldviews—different ways of looking at the world and how human cultures explain their relationship with the natural world.

Course description: This course will study philosophy that is indigenous to North American tribal groups by exploring foundational concepts such as time, space, and place in particular tribal contexts. This will be accomplished by an examination of Native and non-Native writings in areas including (but not limited to): philosophy, anthropology, history, religious studies, cultural studies, science, literature, and art.
