Report From the Chair

Gary A. Hoover, Department of Economics

Welcome to our latest installation of the OU Department of Economics Newsletter. On our website (http://ou.edu/cas/economics/) you can find old editions of this newsletter to help you stay informed about the happenings in the department.

In fall of 2019, the department gave out ten scholarships to undergraduate economics majors. That number is triple what we did just five years ago. The growth in our scholarship funds is the direct result of efforts of alumni like yourself. Please continue to give as the need is substantial.

In the fall of 2019, we welcomed two new faculty members. Professor Kevin Kuruc joined us after receiving his Ph.D. from the University of Texas-Austin. His research and teaching interests are in applied microeconomics and environmental economics. In addition, Professor Jonathan McFadden joined us after previously working for the United States Department of Agriculture. McFadden immediately jumped in to help in our ever growing “Big Data” M.A. program.

The fall College of Arts and Sciences convocation ceremony was very successful, with several dozen students receiving both B.A. and M.A. degrees. Since economics majors can also receive their degrees from the Price College of Business, the department will begin attending those ceremonies also. We love to celebrate all of our majors.

The department is always looking to expand the learning experience for our students. We added sports economics and machine learning to the curriculum this school year. I am currently in talks with other departments to add a “Law and Economics” course to the curriculum. In addition, in the fall of 2020, Professor Holmes will add a new course taught nowhere else in the state on the history of Oklahoma economic development. We are anticipating that this class will be a huge draw for our students.

The department faculty continue to amaze. During the summer and fall of 2019 they produced an enormous amount of scholarly output, which has been prominently featured in the profession. If you have seen any local or national media coverage, you saw our faculty discussing the most pressing economic news of the day.

We still have our T-shirt challenge going on. Contact the economics department so that we can send you one of our Econ Club-designed shirts. So get a shirt and take it with you as you travel and snap a photo so that we can see how many exciting locations our alumni and friends are finding themselves in.

If you’re ever in Norman, please stop by to visit. You really have to see with your own eyes how exciting things are.

2019 Econ Open House Event - Sponsored by Shell

On Oct. 29, the economics department hosted its fifth annual open house event in Zarrow Hall. Approximately 165 guests, including students, faculty, staff, and family members, attended the event, which was sponsored by Shell and the OU Econ Club.

The event included economics departmental scholarship awards, presentations by Econ Club president Stephanie Jansson and economics department chair Professor Gary Hoover, and a chance for students and faculty to meet and exchange ideas about the future of the department.

- OU graduate Tyler Dang is attending Yale Law School. During his career at OU, Tyler obtained a master of arts degree in public administration, a bachelor of arts degree in political science and a bachelor of arts degree in economics. He also earned a minor in religious studies.
Professor Daniel Nedeleescu published the paper "Alpha-Final Offer Arbitration: The Best Way to Avoid Negotiation Failure" in the Group Decision and Negotiation journal.

Professor Tyler Ransom's work in the paper "Legacy and Athlete Preferences at Harvard" was referenced in several publications, including the Washington Examiner, Bloomberg, the National Review, the New York Times and Moguldom.

Read the paper here.

Professor Georgia Kosmopoulou was recently appointed as a co-editor for the Southern Economic Journal. SEJ is published by the Southern Economic Association and aims to disseminate results of novel research in theoretical and applied economics.

She is also serving as an expert at the National Science Foundation since May 2019 and is continuing to serve as an associate editor for the Economics Bulletin.

Her recently published work in the International Economic Review on "Strategic Bidding and Contract Renegotiation" (with H. Jung (her former advisee), C. Lamarche and R. Sicotte) provides empirical evidence of how ex-post-renegotiation affects bidding and outlays in government procurement contracting and uncovers strategic manipulation of bids. It studies bid skewing in contract renegotiation that leads to a substantial increase in the cost of procurement.

Professor Firat Demir became an associate editor in Emerging Markets Finance and Trade in addition to the two journals journals for which he serves as associate editor: the Journal of Economic Surveys, and the Review of Social Economy.

He attended the TEDU Emerging Markets and EEA conferences, and was invited to give two talks at the National Autonomous University of Mexico. He also developed and co-taught a study abroad program in Uganda.
Professor Aparna Mitra retired from the OU Economics Department after teaching at OU since 2000. She taught honors and non-honors sections of Intermediate Microeconomic Theory, Labor Problems, and Economics of Discrimination. She also taught courses on poverty, income inequality, public policy and current issues in the labor market in the Honors College. In 2013, Mitra received the Patten Award for Outstanding Teaching in the Humanities in the College of Arts and Sciences. Her research interests are in the fields of development, labor and social policies both in the United States and in developing countries, such as India.
