

Social Media Management Internship (OKPAN)

Are you passionate about content creation, culture, and the humanities? The Community Archaeologist, an online magazine showcasing Oklahoma heritage, seeks a creative and motivated intern to join our social media team this spring. TCA is published by the Oklahoma Public Archaeology Network (OKPAN). In this role, you will gain hands-on experience crafting engaging content for platforms like Instagram and Facebook, while spotlighting the dynamic stories and research shaping the field of archaeology. You'll collaborate closely with our editorial team to brainstorm, design, and implement campaigns that amplify community voices, highlight new research, and inspire dialogue within and beyond the archaeological community. This is an excellent opportunity for students interested in public communication, digital marketing, and the intersection of cultural heritage and technology. Please e-mail any questions and/or expressions of interest to TCA editors Horvey Palacios (horvey.palacios@ou.edu) and/or Chelsy Lyons (chelsylyons@ou.edu).