

BARD LIBS

A Shakespearean word game to prep for #FirstFoliOU

Sonnet 130

My mistress' _____ are nothing like the sun; Coral is far more (body part plural)

_____ than her _____ ; If snow be (adjective) (body part) (same adjective)

_____, why then her _____ are _____ ; If hairs be (adjective) (body parts plural) (adjective)

wires, _____ wires grow on her head. I have seen roses (adjective)

damask'd, red and white, But no such _____ see I in her (plural noun)

_____ ; And in some perfumes is there more _____ Than (body part) (noun-emotion)

in the _____ that from my mistress _____. I love to hear (noun) (verb ending in s)

her _____, yet well I know That _____ hath a far more (verb) (plural noun)

_____ sound; I grant I never saw a goddess go; _____, (adjective) (woman in the room)

when she walks, treads on the ground: And yet, by _____, I think (place)

my love as _____ As any she _____ with false compare.
(adjective) (verb ending in ed)