

BARD LIBS

A Shakespearean word game
to prep for #FirstFoliOU

---

Sonnet 18

Shall I compare thee to a _____? Thou art more _____ and (noun) (adjective)

more _____: Rough _____ do shake the _____ (adjective) (plural noun) (adjective)

_____ of May, And summer's lease hath all too short a date:
(plural noun)

Sometime too hot the _____ of heaven shines, And often is his (body part)

_____ dimm'd; And every fair from fair sometime _____, By (human trait) (verb)

chance, or nature's _____ course, untrimm'd; But thy eternal (adjective)

_____ shall not fade Nor lose possession of that fair thou ow'st; Nor (favorite season)

shall Death brag thou wander'st in his shade, When in eternal _____ to (plural noun)

time thou grow'st; So long as men can breathe or _____ can (body part)

_____, So long lives this, and this gives _____ to _____.
(verb) (plural noun) (person in the room)