OVERVIEW OF PANEL

This summer, the Ethical Tribal Engagement Series will travel to the OU Health Sciences Center to engage with a distinguished lineup of speakers who will address the nuances, protocols, concerns, ethics, and best practices of conducting research or collaborations with and about Indigenous communities or collections. The series seeks to bridge tribal and institutional perspectives. Panelists will aim to stimulate discussion and foster continued reciprocal collaborations by considering the prospects, challenges, and ramifications of health care healing research as a sacred science.
