OZONE ALERT

Volume 38 | September 28, 2011

OZONE SHUT-DOWN OVER OU-Texas WEEKEND

Due to aging hardware and equipment lease agreements nearing the end of their contractual life, the oZONE team is migrating the oZONE system to new hardware. While no major application enhancements will occur during this migration, there will be several underlying infrastructure updates to keep the system operating smoothly.

The development and testing instances of the oZONE system have already been moved to new hardware. Those moves put the production system out of sync with the test/development systems, which means the oZONE team is unable to do any meaningful development or testing of current enhancement projects.

Since time is of the essence, the oZONE executive committee has determined the production migration will occur over the OU/Texas weekend. Moving the production instance to the new hardware, and testing it sufficiently, requires three full days.

OZONE will come down on Thursday, October 6th at 5:00 pm, and will remain down Friday, Saturday, and Sunday (Oct. 7 – 9). The system is expected to be back up and running at 8:00 am on Monday, Oct. 10th. This shut-down includes online admission applications and admission decisions, bursar functions, enrollment, The Book, financial aid, and Cognos reporting.

The Executive Committee and the oZONE team realize Friday, October 7th is a workday, even though classes will not be held. They feel this implementation window must be utilized to bring the various environments back in sync as soon as possible so we can continue to improve and enhance oZONE for all users. We appreciate your understanding.
